

International Guest Faculty

The next generation of leadership won't be defined by control, but by the courage to connect — to the authentic self, to story, and to the shared human journey. Leaders that can communicate at this level of excellence will be the superstars of tomorrow.

Professor Dr. Nick Morgan
Harvard Executive Education
Communications Coach and Theorist,
Author, Keynote Speaker, HBR & Forbes Blogger.
Professional Development
TERM C : Business Communication

Leadership today isn't just about what you're capable of — it's about what you're striving toward. In a fast-changing world, the most effective leaders are those who align aspiration with action, lead with purpose, and build cultures that can adapt, grow, and thrive

Professor Eleni Kitra
CEO, Board Member, ex-Meta, Omnicom, Sony,
Top100 Asia's Women Power Leaders 2023, CIO
Times Influential Women to watch 2023
TERM B: Strategic Digital Marketing

The leaders of tomorrow won't be defined by their ability to command. They will be defined by their ability to solve real problems —by inspiring, innovating, and uniting a world beyond borders, supported by the right exposure, which is crucial to their journey

Professor Henry Afekuana
Digital Transformation Leader | Global Business
Strategy & Commercial Excellence The Heineken Company, Emerging AI Governance &
Policy Advocate| Poets & Quants' Best & Brightest
TERM B: Supply Chain 4.0

My experience is that we typically know what we should be doing, both personally and professionally. The profound question that I help leaders and organizations answer is, 'why don't we do the things we know we should be doing?'

Professor Dr. Richard Jolly
Northwestern University
Kellogg School of Management
TERM B: Professional Executive Development

Human connection will be the real superpower in the Age of AI

Professor Joshua Bernstein
VAULT Profit Partners, Strategic Influence &
Growth Partner, Wharton School
TERM B Human Capital